The Transdisciplinary Research Centre: Culture, Space and Memory (CITCEM), Landscapes, Borders and Powers Group, the Portuguese Association for the Quaternary Studies (APEQ) and the Faculty of Engineering of the University of Porto (FEUP) invite all interested parties to participate in the 1st International Congress on Settlement and Mining Exploration in the Atlantic Western Europe, which will be held in the Museum Auditorium D. Diogo de Sousa, Braga, Portugal, December 10 and 11, 2010.

Metals have always attracted the attention of Man, and the gold, silver, copper and tin mining in the Atlantic Western Europe produced a whole range of political, economic and social transformations, reflex of the way communities from Prehistory interact and interrelate with the space. The importance of mining as a pole of unifying people and services can be seen in the traces of occupation and use of territories.

This Congress aims to present the latest works in the mining area and its implications on settlement and society, in the archaeometallurgical area, including analysis of materials and jewellery, and in the new methodologies applied to archaeology, especially geophysical prospecting and systems of geographical information.

This Congress is integrated in the research project Territorial Organization and Roman Exploitation of Resources in the Conventus of Bracara Augusta, with the support of FCT (SFRH/BPD/41771/2007).
